State Fair Secretary Gets Convict Laborers

A move announced Friday by W. C. Askew, secretary of the Missouri State Fair, may save the Fair about $10,000 this year, but could cause some people to be "unnecessarily concerned."

Askew said that 15 honor inmates from the Missouri Department of Corrections' Fordland Honor Camp would be used as maintenance personnel on the grounds here beginning next Monday.

NEWS IN BRIEF

NEW YORK (AP) — Members of the letter carriers local that spearheaded the March postal strike have voted narrowly to put off until July 1 a decision on renewing the walkout.

CHIMBOTE, Peru (AP) — The U.S. helicopter carrier Guam was anchored today off the coast of this Peruvian fishing port, preparing to launch her cargo of helicopters into earthquake relief operations.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — An explosion ripped a four-foot-square hole in the wall of a police building Thursday night, shattering windows in the building and in a bus parked outside.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee unanimously approved today President Nixon's nomination of Elliot L. Richardson to be secretary of health, education and welfare.

Junior College Aid Level Remains at Lower Figure

BULLETIN

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The third special session of the Missouri Legislature since last September ended its work shortly after noon today.

The end came after the Senate completed work on the 1970-71 budget, sending all the bills to the governor by one-sided votes.

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A last-minute fight over aid to junior colleges threatened for a time today to delay adjournment of the special session and perhaps force the legislators to come back for a fourth special meeting within a year.

But the Senate got over that hump when it voted, 11-20, against sending the junior college appropriation back to a House-Senate conference in an attempt to get some more state aid for the 1970-71 fiscal year.

It was the same fight made in the House Thursday, when a vote of 70-88 defeated a similar motion to recommit the big education bill.

That meant the amount of state aid would remain at $8,733,120, the same as for this year and the same as voted by the Senate last week on a 30-4 tally.

That was the amount recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, although the colleges had requested $10,688,000.

Sen. John E. Downs, D-St. Joseph, protested that the action would cut state aid from $320 per pupil this year to about $260 next year, although the state appropriates enough to give state college students $1,300 to $1,400 a year.

Sen. T. D. McNeal, D-St. Louis, Senate appropriations chairman, said it would be irresponsible and an act of bad faith for the Senate to reverse its position now.

He predicted sending the bill back to conference committee would mean the committee would have to start all over in trying to get a balanced budget for 1970-71 and would force a fourth special session at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, who offered the motion to recommit, said there was plenty of time for the junior college allotment to be reconsidered before the mandatory adjournment time of midnight Sunday. He said the junior college program is the one the state can least afford to cut.

He was the author of the original law setting up the state aid system for junior colleges.

But on the vote, McNeal demonstrated once again that he had solid support for the work of his committee.

The major money bills whipped through the House Thursday with little trouble, sending them to the Senate for the final cleanup work of the special session that started April 15.

Half of Cambodia Is Said In Hands of Communists

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian government, faced with sharply mounting pressure from the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, has decided reluctantly to cede almost half the country to enemy control, well informed diplomatic sources said today.

The disclosure came as military sources reported that enemy troops seized nearly half of the provincial capital of Kompong Speu, 30 miles south of Phnom Penh in heavy fighting.

Refugees from the town, which lies on the only highway open to Cambodia's major port of Kompong Som, formerly Sihanoukville, said the enemy held the central market and virtually all of that part of the town which lies south of a river bisecting it.

Western military experts termed the decision to cede territory to the enemy realistic, and said that even by concentrating its forces around Phnom Penh and northwest of the capital, the government will have only a 50-50 chance of surviving the next four or five months of monsoon rains.

The threat to the port of Kompong Som, through which all of Phnom Penh's fuel and other vital supplies must pass could have critical consequences.

Enemy troops also made a strong attack 50 miles northeast of Phnom Penh in what could be a prelude to new assaults on the key Mekong River town of Kompong Cham.

Spokesmen said the fighting at Siem Reap, near the Angkor temple ruins, had subsided, but strong enemy forces were still in the area.

The diplomats said Premier Lon Nol's government, in assessing its prospects, had written off the extensive eastern territory in which U.S. and South Vietnamese forces have been operating. With its army and strategic reserves already spread dangerously thin, the sources said the government realizes that much of the area east and south of Phnom Penh will revert to Communist control if the U.S. and South Vietnamese leave.

Already the government has lost control of vast areas in the northeast and the situation there worsens almost daily. But the area around Phnom Penh and the rice belt stretching northwest around the giant Tonle Sap lake will be defended at all costs, diplomatic sources said.

They said this is also true of Battambang and Siem Reap, two provincial capitals west and north of the Tonle Sap. Both cities are military regional headquarters and are astride the only roads to Thailand. These roads may become the government's lifeline to the outside world in the months to come.

Government troops have not been able, however, to push far enough south of Phnom Penh to link up with allied units now in southern Kampot and Takeo provinces.

U.S. troops are scheduled to leave Cambodia June 30 and a major part of the South Vietnamese invasion force is expected to follow shortly thereafter.

The allied plan, as interpreted by diplomats here, is for South Vietnamese troops to make new thrusts into Cambodia along the border, only if and when enemy forces re-establish base camps in the region.

Team activities for participating boys and girls will include volleyball, soccer, soft-pitch softball, basketball, touch football and badminton. The activities will be held for all age levels.

Informal activities will include running relays, minor games and track events.

The sessions will be broken into two divisions — morning sessions will begin at 8:30 and end at 11:45, while the evening sessions get underway at 4:30 p.m. and end at 8:30 p.m.

During the day, sessions will be held at Hubbard Park (Monday and Wednesday); Centennial Park (Monday and Thursday); Horace Mann School (Tuesday and Friday); Heber Hunt School (Wednesday and Friday); Housel Park (Tuesday and Thursday) and Smith-Cotton Gymnasium (daily).

Evening activities will be held daily at Jennie Jaynes Stadium and Smith-Cotton Gymnasium.

forces re-establish base camps in the region.

But military agreements worked out recently between Saigon and Phnom Penh apparently include the possibility of sending South Vietnamese troops to save Lon Nol's government, if necessary.

Reports from Kompong Speu indicated the fighting was still going on. A government spokesman said he considered the attack a threat to Phnom Penh, even though the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have penetrated much closer to the capital in the past.

Kompong Speu is 30 miles southwest of Phnom Penh on Route 4, the only highway still considered open between the capital and the port of Kompong Som. Kompong Som — Sihanoukville until Prince Norodom Sihanouk was deposed in March — is on the Gulf of Siam 120 miles southwest of Phnom Penh. It is the port of entry for Cambodia's petroleum supply, and Phnom Penh has only a two-week stock on hand.

Several government battalions were reported defending Kompong Speu. Some observers speculated that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese might be trying to draw more government forces out of Phnom Penh, further depleting the capital's strategic reserves.

Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., that proponents said would have emasculated the curb on presidential war powers. Both sides said the vote signified passage of the Cooper-Church amendment next week.

That amendment, if adopted, would bar funds for retaining U.S. forces in Cambodia after June 30 and would limit aid and the use of airpower in that country.

But its chances of taking effect are considered slim at the best, because the House is expected to vote against it. Senate adoption would do little more than express the sentiment of the House and Senate opposition.

With the Byrd vote out of the way, the Senate turned its attention today to an amendment by

Report Hostages Freed In Jordan; Widow Held

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fifty-eight foreigners held hostage in Amman were reportedly released today, but Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported that a commando group was holding the widow of an American military attaché killed by guerrillas in the Jordanian capital earlier this week.

A guerrilla organization in Beirut announced that the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine this morning released the 58 Americans. Britons and other foreigners it had held captive for more than 36 hours in Amman's two main hotels.

Diplomats in the Lebanese capital confirmed the report, but had no details. Regular communication channels with the Jordanian capital were still cut.

The American woman reported a prisoner of the commandos was the widow of Maj. Robert P. Perry of Chicago, an attaché of the U.S. Embassy in Amman who was killed by a group of guerrillas who invaded his residence Wednesday at the height of the fighting between the Palestinians and Jordanian living in Jordan.

In Washington, the White House said only "precautionary planning" was being done. But a representative of the International Red Cross arrived in Amman today to arrange the evacuation, and three Lebanese jetliners were standing by in Beirut to fly the evacuees to Athens.

Subsequently, the State Department said in Washington that the airlift to evacuate the Americans would enter Jordan today. A spokesman said planes have received landing permission from Jordanian authorities.

The spokesman also said it was understood by the department that the hostages held by the guerrillas are being released.

Hussein made major concessions to the guerrillas Thursday by dismissing his uncle from command of his army and removing his cousin from command of an army division that had spearheaded the battle against the guerrillas in Amman.

Humphrey, 59, will follow up the announcement with a news conference Sunday afternoon at his lakeside home in Waverly.

He will seek the seat now held by Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, a fellow Democrat who has announced he will not seek re-election.

Heritage of Jews No Longer Hidden

NEW YORK (AP) — They're fewer. They're scattered. They're feeling new slurs from the radical left. But today, a quarter century after Hitler tried to wipe them out, the Jews of Europe are more firmly committed than ever to their heritage.

That's the assessment of a leading expert on European Jewish life. Zachariah Shuster of Paris, France, who says that despite their reduced numbers, scantier resources and new tensions, they affirm their Judaism strongly than before.

"It's a new phenomenon," he said in an interview. "There's no longer a desire to hide their Jewishness. Now, even the young say it openly. 'I'm a Jew.' There's no more running away."

Before World War II, and the Nazi atrocities to exterminate Jews, an eroding process of assimilation had been going on, he said, in which they changed their names and dropped community associations almost as if to bury their identity."

"But this process of disappearing and assimilation is not happening anymore," he said. He attributed the change to a "sense of pride" and "positive values" instilled in Jews by the creation of the state of Israel.

"It has brought a tremendous transformation in European Jewry," he said. "It has given them a sense of attachment, of belonging to a community larger than their own. It has refuted the old charges about Jews not being farmers or fighters. It has given them a sense of building up from nothing."

But, he said, it also has brought subtle new pressures against Jews from Communist and far-left forces who take the pro-Arab Soviet position inappropriating "anti-Zionism" often

"The Redeemer" is the title of Pastor Jene Cook's 10:45 a.m. message Sunday at Faith Baptist Church, (Independent Fundamental) 2331 South Ingram. The choir will sing "Make Me a Blessing," and a sextette will sing, "Blessed Redeemer."

"A Backslidden Church" is the title of the 7 p.m. service message, which is a continuation in the study of Revelation. Special music will be an instrumental duet by Dale and Sharon Armstrong. Miss Laura Day will sing, "Under His Wing."

The Youth Meeting begins at 4:15 p.m. and Training Union at 6:15 p.m. Sunday school begins at 9:45 a.m. with a class for all ages.

Sunday morning at the First Baptist Church (Southern Baptist) the sanctuary choir will sing "Beside Still Waters." Minister of education and music, Raymond G. Hall, will sing "Fill My Cup, Lord." The Rev. Jess R. Wallace, pastor, will preach for both morning and evening services.

In the evening the choir will sing "Bells of Joy."

The Rev. Ray Gipson will speak on "Why Do Young People Quit the Church?" at the Sunday morning worship service at Parkview Christian Church.

The closing program of Vacation Bible School will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

The Rev. John Steele will speak on the topic, "A Spiritual House," at the Sunday morning service at Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Dale Carson, a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School and Culver Stockton College, will bring the morning message at the First Christian Church Sunday. "Stewardship at Its Worst."

Mr. Carson is a student at Brite Divinity School, Texas Christian University, Fort Worth. He also serves as minister of the Memorial Christian Church, Graham, Tex.

Kansas City Construction Remains at a Standstill

KANSAS CITY (AP) — More than 95 per cent of public and private construction throughout the city was at a virtual standstill today as a construction workers strike entered its 11th week.

The crippling strike, the area's second in as many years, affected an estimated 23,000 workers in Greater Kansas City. There was virtually no progress in negotiations.

There were no firm figures of the cost of the dispute. Some estimates were that it was draining up to $3 million a week from the city's economy. More than $73 million in projects are effected.

Virtually all chance of completing the football stadium in the Harry Truman Sports Complex by the opening of the 1971 exhibition season has disappeared.

On June 2, Trans World Airlines announced the strike may force reconsideration of plans for construction of maintenance facilities at Kansas City International Airport.

W.W. Hutton, managing director of the builders association, said the 500 projects affected by the dispute also include a large redevelopment project on the fringe of the downtown area and numerous housing and apartment projects.

Five construction union locals called the strike April 1 in support of demands for a wage increase of almost $10 hourly over a three-year period. The demand later was scaled to $5.50 hourly. Workers averaged $4 an hour when the strike began.

The striking unions are Laborers locals 1290 and 264, Mason and Plaster Tenders Local 555, Cement Finishers Local 518 and Lathers Local 27.

Last Fight of McCormack To Get 18-Year-Old Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker John W. McCormack, whose 78 years have made him a target of the young, is making his last big legislative fight an attempt to win the vote for 18-year-olds.

The speaker, who is retiring from the House after this session of Congress, is pushing hard for passage of a bill that would extend the Voting Rights Act of 1965 and lower the voting age to 18.

Largely as a result of his efforts, backers of the bill are confident they have the votes to send it to the White House when the House takes it up Wednesday.

McCormack has been calling on members who are undecided or actually in opposition to the bill and asking for their support.

"He puts it right to you," a recipient of one of his calls says. "He says this is going to be his last big vote and he wants you with him. I'm not for the 18-year-old vote, but I'm going to vote with the speaker."

Passage of the bill would also be sweet revenge for the speaker for a painful setback he and the other House leaders suffered last December when the chamber rejected an extension of the Voting Rights Act in favor of a milder, broader administration measure.

The 1965 act zeroes in on the

The Kansas Builders Association had offered $3 hourly, but withdrew that offer June 3.

Don H. Ong, builders association chairman, declared no further offer would be made to the unions "until we see some signs of realism on the other side of the table."

Jerry Irvine, business agent for Laborers Local 264, said when the strike began that he and other union leaders realized the increase they sought was inflationary.

"We're not denying it, but we don't think a few thousand people in the middle of the country are going to stop inflation," Irvine said.

George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development, in a letter to Hutton said he considered the union demands harmful to the ability of the construction industry to produce housing at prices people can afford to pay."

This week, Mayors Iius Davis of Kansas City, Mo., and Joseph H. McDowell of Kansas City, Kan., along with Donald Gamet, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, asked President Nixon to step in.

They urged Nixon to suspend the Davis-Bacon Act during "this inflationary period." The law requires builders to pay prevailing wages if the government is a party to a building contract. Davis said the U.S. attorney general has ruled the president has the authority to suspend the act.

Davis declared Kansas City's prevailing wage was the highest in the nation and "has become an instrument of inflation."

Retailers were feeling the pinch.

Three Consumer Agencies O.K.'d

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill creating three consumer agencies—described by the measure's chief architect as "the first balance wheel inserted into the market place in 50 years"—has been unanimously approved by a House subcommittee.

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., said the new agencies will give the consumers a voice in the federal government and the courts.

The agencies are essential, he said, because federal regulatory agencies "have become clients of the industries they're supposed to regulate."

Merchants generally did not regard the effects as crippling as those of the four-month strike last summer, but they said customers were buying more of the less expensive, non-luxury items, and fewer autos and television sets.

Greater Kansas City ranked first in the nation in the number of man days lost to strikes in 1969. The Labor Department reported some 2.7 million lost days, more than 20 times the 1968 figure. St. Louis was second with 2.3 million lost days, while New York was third with 1.8 million.

— Make Virginia Knauer's Office of Consumer Affairs a permanent White House agency with expanded powers to protect consumer interests in government programs, conduct investigations, relay consumer complaints to appropriate agencies and publish a Consumer Register with such information as product testing results.

— Create an independent Consumer Protection Agency to represent citizen interests in all pertinent government and court proceedings except criminal cases.

— Create a 12-member Consumer Advisory Council to advise the White House office and protection agency on the effectiveness of laws and federal programs involving consumer interests.

Rosenthal predicted the bill will breeze through the parent House government Operations Committee within two to three weeks.

He said the unanimous approval Thursday by subcommittee Democrats and Republicans, including Mrs. Dwyer, should assure House approval. A similar bill is expected to be approved by a Senate subcommittee next week.

The measure is a compromise after nearly a year's work between Rosenthal's original proposal to set up a Cabinet consumer department and administration bills to keep the White House office and create a consumer protection agency in the Justice Department.

The administration won the White House office and Rosenthal

Ann Landers

Fleas Have Fled, So Stop Scratching

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago I visited an out-of-town friend who entertained me royally. She gave a big party and several of us ended up sleeping on the floor. That night I picked up fleas. This is no joke. I have tried several "home remedies" including kerosene, DDT and flea powder but nothing works.

The horrible part is that the fleas are not visible and I can't prove I have them. I've gone to two doctors and they both insist I do not have fleas. They say my skin is irritated from scratching. The implication that I am imagining things makes me furious. One doctor gave me a prescription for the itch which I threw out. Why treat the itch when the problem is fleas?

Dear Mare: Fleas are visible. If you have them the doctors would be able to see them. My flea-bit expert in Washington, D.C. says it would be virtually impossible for a flea to survive on a person who washes regularly — to say nothing of using DDT or kerosene. Whatever bit you that night died a long time ago. Go back to your friendly dermatologist and stop arguing with him. Let him treat the itch (which was caused by scratching) and be thankful you have nothing worse.

Dear Ann Landers: When will you stop kidding your readers and tell them that basic human problems are insoluble? At best, one can only learn to live with them.

Consider my own case. I am a reasonably intelligent research scientist (Ph. D.) who, unfortunately, married a woman who barely made it out of high school. I've worked hard to achieve something. She has piddled away her time and is content to be nothing more than a housekeeper. There is no meaningful communication between us emotionally, intellectually or even socially.

After three major illnesses (emotionally created) and finally major surgery to correct internal bleeding, I have had it. She refuses to let me go, however, saying, "Whomever God has joined together, let no man put asunder."

Don't tell me to consult a marriage counselor, psychiatrist or minister. I have already done so. The marriage counselor told my wife she has lost her identity. (She pooh-poohs the idea.) The psychiatrist advised me to get a divorce. The minister said he couldn't see me because he had to go to the funeral of a friend.

I'm sure you can do nothing for me but it might be amusing to see you try. I repeat, "Basic human problems are insoluble." — Ph.D. SOS

Dear Ph. D.: Some basic human problems are insoluble, but your problem is neither basic nor is it insoluble.

The statement, "She refuses to let me go," is the clue. Perhaps she can make it difficult for you to get a divorce, but she cannot force you to live with her. A man who has had three emotionally created illnesses and an ulcer operation and remains under the same roof with a woman he feels is the cause for his illness needs to examine his need for punishment. She could not have done all this without your cooperation.

I hope you have found something more than amusement in my answer. It provides you with a solution to your "insoluble" problem — if you really want one, that is.

Prices of Fat Cattle Down Some From 1969

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices of fat cattle going to slaughter this month have been about $5 per hundredweight less than the peak of last June which triggered some of the highest retail meat costs on record.

Agriculture Department mar-

experts say the average price of slaughter steers at seven major markets last week was $29.81 per hundredweight, compared with $34.36 a year earlier.

The price trend for fat cattle has been generally down this spring, in contrast to last year when it moved sharply upward during May and early June.

Choice steers at Chicago declined from $32.31 in early

March to $30.52 last week, according to the department's latest weekly report on livestock markets.

However, the report said,

there have been no generally sharp price breaks, and officials say none is expected. They have said for some months that slaughter cattle prices this year were not expected to rise above last year's peak, which was the highest since the Korean War.

Larger over-all supplies of red meat this year have been part of the reason for the lower prices this spring. Also, market economists say, weights of fat cattle moving to slaughter have been about 20 pounds per head more than a year ago.

Hog prices have tumbled around $5 per hundredweight

since January, according to Agriculture Department national averages for May. Last week's report said the average price at major markets in early June was $23.11 per hundredweight, compared with $24.95 a year earlier.

Hog weights also have gone up, to 246 pounds for slaughter barrows and gilts last week, compared with 238 a year earlier.

The last general session Hardin had with Washington newsmen was on Dec. 29 when he announced details of the 1970 feed program.

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., will address the opening session of the annual convention of the Department of Missouri, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in Jefferson City June 19. About 2,000 veterans and their wives are expected to attend.

Mexico Goes Crazy After Belgium Win

MEXICO CITY (AP) — By the look of the streets of Mexico City, the World Cup is over and Mexico has won.

Countless thousands of yelling, soccer-crazed Mexicans are parading the boulevards of their jazzy capital in a gigantic cacophony of celebration.

Cars crawl by with bumpers scraping the road surface under the weight of 20 or more youngsters perched on roof, hood and trunk.

Buses carry an extra burden of 40 or 50 non-paying passengers, perched on the roof and chanting "Me-he-co, Me-he-co."

The streets in the small hours are white with ticker tape and paper still pouring down from skyscraper offices. Europeans here for the soccer agree it's the biggest junket they've seen since VE-Day brought the end of World War II.

All this because Mexico, far from winning the World Cup, scraped through to the quarter-finals by beating Belgium 1-0 Thursday with a goal from a disputed penalty that gave the Britons a 1-0 win over Czechoslovakia.

Patterson Wins Golf Tournament

CAMDENTON — Charles Patterson of Clinton, formerly of Sedalia, was the winner of the championship flight at the Annual Men's Golf Tournament, last weekend in Camdenton.

The tournament was held at the Lake Valley Country Club.

Patterson fashioned a two-under par, 74, two strokes ahead of Bill Lucas of Springfield, Mo. and Norman Hood of Louisville, Ky.

Dick Luke of Springfield, Mo., was third with a 77.

John Weist of Warsaw tied three other golfers at 83 for the top prize in the A flight — the three other golfers were all from Camdenton, W. J. Forgy, Leonard North and Ed Laughlin.

Jim Wilson of Windsor tied three others for first place in the B flight — Preston Joyes, Jr. of Louisville, Ky. and Butch Amsburg and Gary Anderson, both of Camdenton.

In the C flight, Vernon Jeffries of Osage Beach, Mo. and Charles McWilliams of Lebanon, Mo. were the tied winners; they both shot rounds of 100.

Dr. Maurice Nieman of Camdenton won the D flight with a 111.

Dispute or not, the quarter-final line-up is now settled.

Of the 16 teams that opened the World Cup May 31, Mexico, the Soviet Union, Uruguay, Italy, Brazil, England, West Germany and Peru are still in with a chance.

Belgium, El Salvador, Sweden, Israel, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Bulgaria and Morocco all take the cheerless journey.

In Leon: West Germany vs. England.

Today to decide which is the group leader.

Until then Sunday's quarter-finals shape up this way:

In Mexico City: Mexico or Russia vs. Uruguay.

In Toluca: Italy vs. Mexico or Russia.

In Guadalajara: Brazil vs. Peru.

In Leon: West Germany vs. England.

The one issue still unsettled is whether Mexico or Russia will take first place in the Group One preliminary section.

They ended tied with five points each and an equal goal record. Lots were to be drawn.

The three who joined them were Mexico, England and Italy, and none could be really happy with the way they did it.

Italy could scrape only a goal.

less draw against Israel's amateurs. The Italians have scored only once in the preliminaries yet still head Group Two with four points from three matches. Uruguay finished second with three points.

England was struggling most of the time against the Czechs, who despite their fine record in previous World Cups go home without a single point.

Allan Clarke, former Fulham and Leeds United striker, had the nerve-jangling experience of taking a penalty in his first England match.

He stroked it home with icy calm. But England's failure to take its chances is still worrying Manager Sir Alf Ramsey, who said he found his team's performance disappointing.

As this fantastic festival roars on into the night, the only question is: What will the Mexicans do to cap it if they really win the World Cup?

Predict Good Conditions For The Weekend Anglers

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Fishermen finally got some good news from the state Conservation Department today.

Barring further heavy rains, all streams and lakes should be in fair to good condition for weekend anglers.

Steve Reid Early Leader In Western Tournament

CHICAGO (AP) — Steve Reid, a six-year circuit player with only one major victory, had a "mystery" grip on first-place as the $130,000 Western Open Golf Tournament entered its second day today.

Reid, 33, fired a paradoxical 30-36-66 round over Beverly Country Club's par 36-35-71 tightly-wooded acres yesterday for a one-stroke lead over a contested flock of eight runners-up deadlocked at 67.

Reid, who has earned only $11,000 this year and scored his only PGA triumph in the 1968 Azalea Open, attributed his five-under-par triumph to a change in his club grip and mechanics of his swing before the 1970 tour began.

"I can't explain the grip change I made, but it has changed my game," said Reid. "But it apparently is paying off, even though I was playing so poorly two months ago. I almost switched back to my old style of gripping the club."

Reid didn't say whether his new-found grip applied to his putter.

But it was a devastating touch on the greens that gave Reid his six-under-par 30 first nine after he opened on the flip-flop start, with a one-over-par 36 on Beverly's back nine.

Reid trickled home six birdie putts of 40, 20, 15, 12, 9 and 8

as he sneaked in one stroke ahead of such 67 shooters as Arnie Palmer, Dow Finsterwald, Bob Charles, Johnny Pott, Dick Lotz, Bobby Nichols, Tommy Jacobs and Hugh Royer.

In a 26-player logjam at 72, six strokes off the pace, was pre-tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus, who commented: "On this kind of course, you can open with a 72 and still be a contender."

Nicklaus blamed his one-over-par round on "pulling the wrong clubs out of the bag" — I just played 13 of 14 holes the wrong way and didn't putt well at all."

Palmer, again drawing a huge "Arnie's Army" gallery, seemed ready for a strong run at the $26,000 top prize. Rallying from a startling four-putt second green, Palmer wound up with five birdies and an impressive nine one-putt greens with his 34-33 round.

The victory went to Ron Mantei who got relief help from Mike Wilhelm.

Kent Fewell and Bill Cox slumped home runs and Gene Jouret picked up his first victory in relief, for Columbia.

Kelly O'Neal fanned 12 batters in seven innings of relief as Tipton evened its mark at 1-1. The winners pounded out 12 hits.

Denny Sercu allowed Centralia only three hits and fanned eight as he outdueled Centralia ace Harold Beasley in Bonnerville's Harley Park.

HOUSTON — The S-M Sporting Goods softball team of Houston lost two games Wednesday night to Sams of Marshall by scores of 4-3 and 8-2.

Bob Sevier took the loss in the first contest for S-M; Fischer was the winning hurler for Sams.

In the second game, Davis got credit for the win, while Charles was the loser.

For the year, S-M now stands at 8-4. They will put that record on the line Sunday night at Clinton against B-L Electric.

Know How to Clean An Old Wicker Trunk?

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have just been given a VERY old wicker trunk which needs a thorough cleaning. Can anyone tell me how to do this safely? Would it be advisable to spray on a protective coating after cleaning the trunk?—MRS. W.

DEAR POLLY and Mrs. R. V. H., who is in doubt about who gives house warming party and how—Several years ago when we moved into our new home I was a school teacher and very active church worker. I gave two different house warmings—one for the teachers at school and another for my Sunday School class and the preacher and his wife. Both husbands and wives were asked. I sent out comical invitations which gave the old and new addresses and the time of the party but there was no mention of gifts.

The night of the teachers' party, after they had all arrived, the school principal brought in a lovely blooming camellia plant which was from all of them. At the other party many brought small individual gifts that were opened then and there. I served the old standbys—coffee, tea, cookies, nuts and candy and showed off my new home. Both parties seemed most successful.—ETHEL

DEAR GIRLS—It seems customs vary in different sections of the country. In some places friends "give" the party and come with food and usually a gift from all or the individual ones (but not unexpected, we hope) and in other places such a party is given much as Ethel told.

I think you will enjoy reading the following tongue-in-cheek (we hope) letter that expresses the way one of our gentlemen readers feels about the whole idea.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. R. V. H. should do the inviting to her housewarming. On her invitations she should not only ask for gifts but specify precisely what she wants from each, such as a gas range instead of an electric. It would be well to include a plumber and electrician on her guest list.

Plan ahead and have each guest bring a specific article of food to constitute a six-course meal. Guests should bring their own food service and a bottle of booze.

As to opening the gifts: When less affluent guests bring small packages they should be opened at the door upon arrival to see if they are of good enough quality to permit admittance. If not they should be turned away after taking the food and bottle first, of course.

Entertainment will take care of itself. It would be judicious to invite some firemen, policemen and a professional wood refinisher.—MR. R. A. H.

Consumers Getting Numb To Steady Price Hikes

By JOHN CUNNIF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Have you been complaining less about price increases recently? There's a growing feeling among some merchants that while you may not be enjoying price rises, you're becoming less perturbed.

The suspicion cannot be easily documented, and indeed it seems to be contradictory. If people were perturbed last year by 5 and 6 per cent increases, why shouldn't they be this year, when the rates are the same?

Earlier in the battle, housewives picketed stores, boycotted products forced some stores to drop gimmicks and trading stamps, wrote irate letters to anyone who would listen. Now while the fires of inflation continue to be stoked, far less steam is hissing from the boilers.

Part of the explanation might lie in a feeling that retailers have become more responsive to consumer demands and are making serious efforts to keep down living costs. But indifference quite likely plays a large role. People may be tiring of the battle.

Another clue is provided by the most recent University of Michigan report on consumer attitudes and inclinations to buy. It found that consumer buying sentiment continued to decline, but not only because prices were rising.

The deterioration in buying sentiment, said George Katona and Jay Schmiedeskamp of the university's Survey Research Center, was caused mainly by increased awareness of the economic slowdown and growing unemployment.

Higher prices played a less significant role. "In view of rising incomes," the researchers said, "most people say that inflation hurts them only a little, and less than 25 per cent that it hurts them much or very much."

Compare that attitude with the fired-up feelings of the housewives' revolt against re-

Traffic Fatalities Decrease

Deaths and injuries resulting from traffic accidents in Pettis County last month were down, compared to those reported in May of 1969.

According to the Highway Patrol, there were 31 accidents with 16 injuries reported on county roads last month, compared to two fatalities and 24 injuries resulting from 19 accidents during the same month last year.

Accident statistics for area counties last month are as follows:

Johnson County — 42 accidents, 2 fatalities, 28 injured.

Lafayette County — 39 accidents, 27 injuries.

Saline County — 30 accidents, 1 fatality, 25 injuries.

Benton County — 33 accidents, 1 fatality, 26 injuries.

Cooper County — 25 accidents, 1 fatality, 23 injuries.

Moniteau County — 21 accidents, 15 injuries.

Morgan County — 16 accidents, 1 fatality, 9 injuries.

Russia Says Peace Group Is Welcome

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet Union informed Japan today it is ready to accept a joint diplomatic mission from Indonesia, Malaysia and Japan this month to discuss an early solution of the Cambodian war.

Japanese Foreign Ministry officials said the Soviet ambassador to Tokyo, Oleg A. Troyanovsky, told Japanese Deputy Foreign Minister Shinsaku Hogen the Kremlin would welcome him and his party June 7.

Hogen later left for New York for talks with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant on moves for peace in Indochina.

Officials said Hogen would join Indonesian and Malaysian delegates in New York and fly on to Moscow. He also plans to visit London and Paris for a series of conferences.

King Hussein Assumes Command of Jordanian Army

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

King Hussein bowed to guerrilla demands and assumed personal command of the Jordanian army Thursday night in a move to quell bitter fighting between Jordanian troops and Palestinian guerrillas.

Declaring "there will be no other changes," the 34-year-old monarch dismissed his uncle, Sherif Nasser ben Jamil, as commander of the army and relieved his cousin, Zeid ben Shaker, as head of Jordan's Third Armored Division.

Hussein said in a radio address that the dismissals, demanded by guerrillas, represented the "last chance for peace" between the Palestinians and the army.

The king acted after five days of internecine Arab strife that left at least 500 persons killed or wounded.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a radical Marxist group, ignored cease-fire pleas from other guerrillas Thursday and battled government troops in all parts of Amman. It threatened 52 foreign hostages who were being detained in two Amman hotels.

The guerrillas said they would not be responsible for the safety of the hostages, including several Americans, unless the government halts artillery attacks on Palestinian refugee camps.

Associated Press correspondent Dennis Neeld, one of the hostages in the Intercontinental Hotel, reported the guerrillas said the hostages would be released but reversed the decision when army troops resumed shelling refugee camps Thursday.

A Red Cross official who was allowed to visit the hostages reported all were in good spirits and safe. He said Danny Chamoun, son of former Lebanese President Camille Chamoun, was held in a separate room, indicating the guerrillas may set special conditions for his release.

Arab diplomats in Beirut said the Jordanian fighting began when Zeid ben Shaker, angry because his sister was killed by a stray bullet, ordered his division to shell the refugee camps.

The guerrillas charged that both he and Nasser ben Jamil, acting on orders from the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, were trying to destroy their movement.

Yungay Is Now a Graveyard

CARHUAZ, Peru (AP) — Looking across three miles of mud and a sprinkling of boulders, one can see what was once the bustling city of Yungay, now a graveyard for about 28,000 persons killed by an earthquake and a mudslide.

Yungay, which adjoins Carhuaz in the Huaylas Canyon of the Andes, has been erased from the map. The quake unleashed the sea of mud, four feet thick at its edges, that covers the bodies and civilization that once existed.

Only five palm trees stand in the city square a short distance from a statue of Christ, arms outstretched and looking down at the stinking sea of mud.

Carhuaz is one of several Peruvian towns in desperate need of aid after the devastating earthquake which shook this mountain nation May 31, killing perhaps 50,000 persons.

Earthquake relief operations were slow in getting started but they are now moving along, and a dirt strip in another Huaylas Canyon town, Anta, has become the busiest airport in South America.

Survivors in Carhuaz say they want the government to move them to a place where they can build another city.

"There is a psychological sickness now and no one wants to live in this part after the mudslide," said Carlow Vilcarino Guzman, a survivor.

In Anta, the makeshift air-strip has been used from dawn to dusk daily by planes hauling food, medicine and other supplies to the canyon from Lima and the port city of Chimbote. The planes return loaded with survivors.

So far a Peruvian air force helicopter, an Argentine Fokker F27 and an American chopper have crashed while hauling relief supplies.

Two-rotor Chinook helicopters sent from the United States also are being used, along with U.S. Air Force C123 transports, Canadian twin-engine Caribou transports, Peruvian air force DC3s, a number of single-engine planes and helicopters from Brazil, Chile and Argentina. Teams of U.S. army engineers have built an airstrip just outside Carhuaz and plan to build more.

WEATHER.
Partly cloudy, warm and humid through Saturday with a chance of showers and thunderstorms this afternoon and evening. The low Friday night will be in the mid to upper 60s with a high Friday in the mid to upper 80s and a 40 per cent chance of rain through tonight.

Sunset tonight will be at 8:38 p.m. and sunrise tomorrow will be at 5:48 a.m.

NEWS IN BRIEF

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army Thursday pinned its first general's stars on two women—Anna Mae Hays of the Army Nurse Corps and Elizabeth P. Hoisington of the Women's Army Corps. Both were promoted to the rank of brigadier general.

NEW YORK (AP) — A mammoth underworld sweep was under way Thursday, its target 46 mobsters indicted for refusal to testify before a crime-probing Brooklyn grand jury. Among them were several who have been listed as top Cosa Nostra leaders.

According to evidence read in Court, Fox drove to the Parrish residence, accompanied by his brother and sister-in-law, Elvin and Virgie Fox. William Fox and Parrish argued and Parrish ordered Fox to leave. Elvin Fox got out of the car to help his brother, but was reportedly struck from behind by an unknown assailant who has never been identified.

Parrish went to get a rifle when Fox refused to leave. Parrish claims upon returning, the rifle discharged when he tripped, shooting Fox. There were no witnesses to the incident. According to testimony, Elvin Fox was unconscious and Virgie Fox was never identified.

Judge Frank Hayes set sentence at the recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Henry Keeler. Judge Hayes also ruled that Parrish would get credit for two months he has already spent in jail.

Fox died two days after being shot during an argument at the Parrish home, April 18. He was struck in the stomach by a .30-.30 caliber hollow-point bullet, fired at close range.

Troops Take Village South of Da Nang

SAIGON (AP) — An estimated 114 South Vietnamese civilians were killed and another 70 wounded in a two-hour bloodbath Thursday when Viet Cong troops overran a village south of Da Nang, reliable sources said.

The U.S. Command said 70 civilians were known killed and 70 wounded in the assault on Ba Ren, a hamlet of about 2,000 residents 17 miles southeast of Da Nang.

The assault followed a withering mortar barrage which set fire to much of the riverside village. It was launched a few hours before the Saigon government announced that it would repatriate 62 sick and wounded North Vietnamese soldiers next month for "humanitarian reasons."

One U.S. officer, who flew over the smoldering remains of the hamlet, said it was about 90 per cent destroyed or damaged.

Another officer told Associated Press correspondent Michael Putzel in Da Nang that the bodies of 34 civilians were found in a single bunker. Some had apparently suffocated, he said, after they jumped in to escape the attackers and more people fell on top of them.

Survivors said Viet Cong ran through the streets of Ba Ren "shooting anyone they saw" and hurling grenades into homes and civilian bunkers.

The attack was the heaviest of seven reported Thursday against civilian population centers ranging from deep in the Mekong Delta to Dalat in the central highlands. The other six attacks—five shellings and one terror bombing—killed three civilians and wounded 20 others, spokesman said.

The commander of the Marines at Ba Ren, Lt. T.S. Miller, 27, New Kensington, Pa., was quoted by the command as saying the Viet Cong's "Main objective was to destroy this village."

"They kept my Marines pinned down while they infiltrated by village, and then they started their massacre," said Miller. He estimated that more than 200 mortar shells hit the village, many of them with phosphorous shells that set fire to houses.

The Ba Ren assault overshdowed reports of fresh enemy attacks in northwest Cambodia against government defenders around Siem Reap airport, re-captured over the weekend from Communist command troops.

The U.S. Command in Saigon reported six Americans killed and four wounded in two clashes along the Cambodian border and 273 U.S. troops killed and 1,196 wounded in all Cambodian operations since May 1.

The command also reported a sharp drop in American battlefield deaths last week, with 119 killed—26 in Cambodia—and 1,123 wounded. The previous week it reported 165 Americans killed and 757 wounded.

The updated casualty figures raised to 42,544 Americans killed in the Indochina wa-

Fear Argentine President Killed By His Kidnappers

BUENOS AIRES (AP) —

Hope for the life of former President Pedro Eugenio Aramburu virtually flickered out Thursday with the discovery of new evidence indicating the 67-year-old retired army general has been killed by his kidnappers.

The new evidence includes two notes from the alleged kidnappers claiming Aramburu was "executed" on Monday June 1. One arrived in an envelope containing his personal effects.

The May 29 kidnaping of Aramburu, regarded as a possible replacement for President Juan Carlos Onganía, set off a government crisis which ended with Onganía's overthrow by a three-man military junta on Monday.

The envelope containing the note from the alleged kidnappers, plus Aramburu's wristwatch, key chain and two ballpoint pens, was dropped into the night deposit box of a suburban bank early Thursday.

Shortly after noon, the second note, signed by a group which has claimed to be the kidnappers, was found in a downtown bar.

The note said the ex-president

"was executed on Monday, June 1, at 7 a.m.," as a previous message had claimed and added that his personal effects had been deposited "in a place which will ease their return to his family."

The note described in detail the contents of the envelope left in the bank night deposit box.

Col. Jorge Dotti, chief of the political branch of the federal police, confirmed that an envelope containing Aramburu's personal effects had been found along with a note from the alleged kidnappers.

The new note, labeled "communiqué number five" and signed by the "Juan Jose Valle-Montoneros Command"—self-proclaimed followers of former dictator Juan D. Peron—reiterates earlier communiques attributed to the kidnappers.

It described the "Montoneros" as "a union men and women profoundly Argentine and Peronist, ready to fight with arms in their hands for the theme of power for Peron and for the nation and the construction of a free, just and sovereign Argentina."

Earlier communiques had blamed Aramburu—who headed a 30-month provisional government following Peron's overthrow in 1955—for the execution on June 11, 1956, of 27 Peronists—among them Gen. Juan Jose Valle.

The 27 had tried unsuccessfully two days earlier to overthrow Aramburu and restore Peron to power. Since then, a number of Peronist leaders have denied any connection with the Aramburu kidnaping. Prior to his ouster on Monday, Onganía had blamed leftist extremists. Aramburu backers accused "right-wing Fascists" and suggested that Onganía followers might have been involved.

Dr. Richard Kimble, director of the Teacher Corps project for the University of Missouri in St. Louis, has been hired as assistant superintendent of schools for the Sedalia school district, it was learned Thursday.

The appointment was made at the Tuesday meeting of the board of education. Dr. T. J. Norris, superintendent of schools, said the position pays $18,177 annually.

Dr. Kimble's main responsibility, according to Norris, would be business affairs, transportation, purchasing and to act as treasurer for the board of education.

He has been a high school teacher and superintendent of schools, and presently directs the Teacher Corps project.

Dr. Kimble is married and has three children.

School Board Hires An Aide For Norris

Dr. Richard Kimble, director of the Teacher Corps project for the University of Missouri in St. Louis, has been hired as assistant superintendent of schools for the Sedalia school district, it was learned Thursday.

The appointment was made at the Tuesday meeting of the board of education. Dr. T. J. Norris, superintendent of schools, said the position pays $18,177 annually.

Dr. Kimble's main responsibility, according to Norris, would be business affairs, transportation, purchasing and to act as treasurer for the board of education.

for the Mental Health Division, making the total $71,685,300.

But the House backed down on its demand that the Senate restore $3 million it had lopped off the state funds for Medicaid. That left the figure at $25 million.

The House also agreed to accept the Senate's plan to add a hopeful $4 million to state aid for public schools. It is dependent on a higher than expected collection of cigarette tax money during the coming fiscal year.

The State Fiscal Affairs Committee said the result of the House action, with Senate approval expected Friday, would require $624,194,746 in general revenue (tax) money. It would leave a cushion of between $1 million and $3 million, depending on whose figures were used in estimating anticipated revenue.

Most fiscal officers for the state and the legislature called either one too slim for comfort.

(See ACCEPTED, Page 4A)

Appropriation Bills Are Accepted By House

noon to let members check out of their rooms at hotels or motels.

The House reconvened at mid-afternoon to complete the work on its calendar when House and Senate leaders realized their separate planning could lead to trouble.

Hasty conferences were called and the conditional release of House members was decided on.

There was little argument in the House on the $1.4 billion in money measures, to operate the state government and its services for the 1970-71 fiscal year.

A deadlock between the House and Senate on some major issues was broken Wednesday night and clerks rushed to prepare the compromise bills for action at once.

Senate conferees agreed to meet House demands by adding $1.4 million so Old Age Assistance funds remain at their present levels and to add $1.1 million more to the lump sum fund.

Bareheaded Hazards

Man in his migrations takes custom and convention with him and insists upon their observance even when they may become a health liability.

In this country we like to think we are above ignorance in allowing a custom to jeopardize our physical well-being. Yet we have seen people at gravesides standing bareheaded for ten or more minutes in a cold rain or a howling blizzard. This custom is called respect for the dead when in reality it is a pneumonia-laden invitation to join the departed. Paying bareheaded tribute to others has caused no less than rulers and leaders of nations to go to their sick bed; and millions of the common people to a like fate.

In recent years one solution to protection of mourners from the elements has been the use of a grave tent. Such a device protects the immediate family, the clergymen, the pallbearers and few others who may elbow themselves into the tight sheltered quarters. But even a tent is inadequate on days when the cold winds howl and those beneath the canvas like those outside feel the chill air penetrate their hair to the quivering scalp. A bald-headed man has no chance at all.

Fearing criticism of their neighbors, most persons remove their hats under the most distressing weather conditions. Their fear of pneumonia is less than fear of violating a custom.

A man's covered but distinctly bowed head can be as reverent a tribute to the dead as a woman's covered head. Custom does not require her to remove her hat although with a head of copious hair she is much more protected than man.

Removal of the hat by man on stated occasions is supposed to have started in the days of chivalry when our ancestors wore armor and removed their helmets when approaching castles as a sign they were friends. This custom, further developed, probably impelled use of the friendship sign — removal of helmets — at funeral services centuries ago. But such a hard and fast rule or custom should be given a little common sense flexibility when rains fall and blizzards howl during a funeral.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

AP Reporter Is Jailed in Egypt

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The mighty Associated Press, whose reporters are the eyes and ears for newspaper readers around the world, has let one of its reporters languish for 18 months in an Egyptian concentration camp with hardly a murmur of public protest.

The case against Aly Mahmoud, the AP's No. 2 man in Cairo, was so flimsy that an Egyptian court acquitted him of espionage charges a year ago. Yet he is still held in a foul detention camp for the crime, apparently, of reporting the news too objectively to suit President Nasser.

Instead of raising a howl to free Mahmoud, however, the AP has hushed up about the injustice. The AP doesn't want to jeopardize its profitable news service in the Arab world or get its correspondents kicked out of Arab lands.

This is all too typical of the timidity of the great news-gathering organizations, which have shown a distressing reluctance to back up their reporters against the forces that would like to shape the news.

Captured Correspondents

Several newsmen, for instance, have been captured by North Vietnamese soldiers in Cambodia. They can't be released without demolishing the fiction that North Vietnam has no troops in Cambodia.

Hoping to wheedle their release, the news organizations have made whispered appeals to embassies with friendly ties to Hanoi. Other polite appeals have been addressed to Prince Sihanouk, the exiled Cambodian ruler who has gone over to the Communist side. All in vain.

Instead of pussyfooting around to the back doors, the press ought to bang loudly on the embassies' front doors. The United Nations, the Kremlin, the Vatican, the Red Cross should be called upon to intervene.

The press should turn up the spotlight on the missing newsmen and let the world know that North Vietnam won't free them because it is afraid of the truth.

Certainly, the capture of North Vietnamese soldiers and supplies in Cambodia ought to be evidence enough that Cambodian neutrality had been violated. The newsmen, if they should be freed, could tell the world little that isn't fully known.

Right to Know

Every time a newsmen is held captive, the truth dies a little. For any interference with news gathering is an infringement upon the people's right to know.

Aly Mahmoud, a journalism graduate from Cairo's American University, has worked for AP since 1960. On Nov. 28, 1968, he was grabbed by plainclothesmen at Cairo airport along with a representative from a Geneva feature service. The Geneva man was carrying three free-lance stories written by Mahmoud. They were bland, non-secret

"thimbsucks" as general situation stories are known in the news trade.

Mahmoud was locked up in a Cairo jail without bond or hearing on charges of spying for Israel. AP kept up his salary to his wife and three children but made no real public protest.

After five months in a security cell, Mahmoud was hauled out in April, 1969, for a show trial before a "Special State Security Court." Long-gowned waiters served coffee in the seedy courtroom while onlookers smoked and chatted about the proceeding.

Refusing to confess, Mahmoud called the case "a complete fabrication" and "a lousy, botched up" one at that. Indeed, the evidence against him was so weak that the court acquitted him on June 28, 1969.

But instead of turning him loose, the government dumped him into a filthy concentration camp across the Nile from Cairo. The three civilian judges, who voted for his acquittal, were mysteriously "retired." Now, a year later, he is still being held, and the Associated Press is still playing it quiet.

$138 Million Celebration

The Federal Power Commission celebrated its 50th anniversary last week by dealing a $138 million blow to the American consumers whom it is sworn to protect.

Their mischief done, the commission members settled down to a day of seminars and banqueting at which the main speakers were executives from the power firms which the FPC supposedly regulates.

The blow to the consumers came from an FPC decision, reversing the landmark Alabama-Tennessee gas rate case. An earlier, 1964 decision required gas transmission companies to turn back liberalized tax savings to the consumers.

But the Nixon administration has appointed reluctant regulators to protect the public interest at the FPC. Chairman John Nassikas signed a new order last week turning over the tax revenue to the gas industry. The cost to the consumers will be more than $138 million every year.

After the order had been signed, the regulators and regulated listened together to speeches by executives from Northern Natural Gas, Commonwealth Edison and American Electric Power.

The FPC picked its speakers well. The Justice Department recently filed an anti-trust suit against Northern Natural Gas, and American Electric Power is the subject of an anti-merger fight waged by Attorney General John Mitchell.

Editors' Note: The following statement is a reply by the Associated Press to Anderson's charges:

"The Associated Press has worked continuously to obtain Aly Mahmoud's release since his arrest although the charges against him had nothing to do with his work for The Associated Press. They involved a series of three articles Mahmoud wrote on his own for a free-lance photographer, Munir Abdel Ghani, who was subsequently convicted of espionage for Israel and sentenced to 15 years. Mahmoud was acquitted on his plea that he was an unwitting dupe of Ghani but then held under an Egyptian detention law relating to the state of war.

"The Associated Press has repeatedly sought Mahmoud's release through Egyptian authorities, paid all Mahmoud's legal expenses and continued financial assistance to his family during his long imprisonment. It still seeks his release.

"The AP's operation in Egypt is primarily maintained for sending news to the rest of the world. Our revenue in that country has not matched our expenses for a decade."

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Despite all the spotlighting of the poor in America in the closing years of the 1960s, it is evident today that far too little is known about them. And this is a severe handicap to policy-making in their behalf.

In the careless shorthand of public discussion, the notion has taken hold in some quarters that the "poor" and "welfare recipients" are almost wholly synonymous.

The fact is, of course, that there are now about 8 million welfare beneficiaries out of a reliably estimated 25 million poor Americans. The huge nonwelfare remainder is comprised mostly of poor folk who work but do not earn enough to get above the poverty line. Then there are the unemployed who are ineligible for welfare.

A more detailed profile of the urban poor, particularly, will be drawn later. The point to be made here is that, at the general level, some of the things being said about the American poor are unintentionally misleading.

There is much talk, for instance, about "making the poor productive." Authors like Peter Drucker deal hopefully with this prospect on not just a national but a worldwide scale.

Yet he almost certainly would not disagree with the perceptive urban affairs analyst, Dr. Anthony Downs of Chicago, when the latter says that "nearly half" of all poor Americans cannot earn their way out of poverty because they are either old, disabled, too young, or are women caring for the young.

Drucker presumably is most hopeful about that 31 percent of the nation's poor who are at work but are simply not productive enough. They need the benefits of upgraded training, of better adaptation to the frequently new urban environment, of infusions of capital investment that will enlarge the more lucrative job opportunities.

Down, while stressing the foolishness of imagining that any such undertakings will make useful impact on the old, the disabled and the family-raising women among the poor, is not as negative as this makes him sound.

He agrees that the working poor probably can be made productive at higher levels if the right things are done.

Moreover, though he flatly says that the children on the welfare rolls can be helped now only by money, he points out (in a telephone interview with this reporter) that welfare children are not necessarily lost forever to productive employment that can lift them out of poverty.

Some inevitably will be so scarred by early nutritional deficiencies and cultural as well as economic deprivation that they may indeed be lost to useful society. But intensified education and job training efforts may rescue millions.

By the same token, a sizable proportion of the younger elements among the unemployed may be salvageable by similar endeavors, though a recent study indicates that lack of motivation is now so deepset in certain of these young people that they really do not want to work more than sporadically, if at all.

Clearly the whole task of economic uplift is dependent upon strong new upward strides in the nation's economy. There has to be an outlet, a rising market among the consuming millions, for the more productive work of people trying to climb out of poverty.

But there can be reasonable hope of that in the 1970s and beyond. Notwithstanding all the gloom and doom in the summaries of the 1960s, they produced immense economic gains for Americans at nearly all levels. Millions left poverty behind them.

Recital Does Not A Danseuse Make

By BETTY CANARY

We're getting into recital time. This is when fathers say, "I paid $250 this year to hear THAT!" and mothers say, "Watch closely — there she is — Valerie's the one in the back row of butterflies," and teachers say, "Next year, an air-conditioned hall or else."

Parents give different reasons for sending their children dutifully off for music instruction and dancing lessons and vocal lessons. But mainly it narrows down to one reason — they want to give their children "cultural advantages." What is "cultural" about little Darlene wearing a red embroidered costume and clicking her taps or having Jerome pick out what sounds like the left hand doing "Country Gardens" and the right hand playing "The Marines' Hymn" on the piano has never been fully explained to me.

Nevertheless, most parents feel that signing the checks isn't enough. They really believe they should show up at recitals.

When my husband and I attended our daughters' recital, we settled down in anticipation. To be truthful, I settled in anticipation. He settled with an air of wake-me-when-it's-over.

The curtain rose on 15 little girls, 10 of whom were standing, three of whom were sitting backwards, two of whom were rolling towards the edge of the stage. Our program called it "Caprice."

As the pianist repeatedly sounded the opening chord, the audience cooed. "Aren't they adorable!" and the dancers were coaxed into line. After a few touch-your-toes and some charmingly wobbly arabesques, they retreated brilliantly to the wings. All except our youngest daughter, who thought the applause meant she should return for three curtain calls.

"That's it?" her father asked.

"Wonderful, aren't they?" I said. "Not one with stage fright!"

"That's it? he insisted. "She went every single week for a year and that's it?"

"It's an investment in the future," I whispered.

We breathlessly awaited the next group — a pastel-colored tableau featuring our eldest daughter along with some 20 other girls.

Swaying gently to and fro like the flowers they represented, the girls took turns lurching into their solos. I tapped my fingers quietly in time to the music, praying nobody would fall in their first toe shoe dance.

"Fifteen dollars for that gauze she's wearing?"

I nodded.

"Was she supposed to stumble that way?"

I glared. "Rome wasn't built in a day," I hissed. "and neither is a dancer."

I'm pretty sure he said something then about a ton of bricks but I couldn't hear him above the applause.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Premarital Blood Test

Recommended Procedure

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Although June is traditionally known as the month of brides, weddings are fairly evenly distributed throughout the year. In planning a wedding, however, some couples fail to include the blood test required in many states. In some cases, this may necessitate an embarrassing postponement.

This can be avoided by visiting your physician two or three weeks before the wedding date and telling him you want a serologic test for syphilis — a good idea even where it is not a legal requirement. When the test has been made, return to his office and get his certificate and the laboratory report.

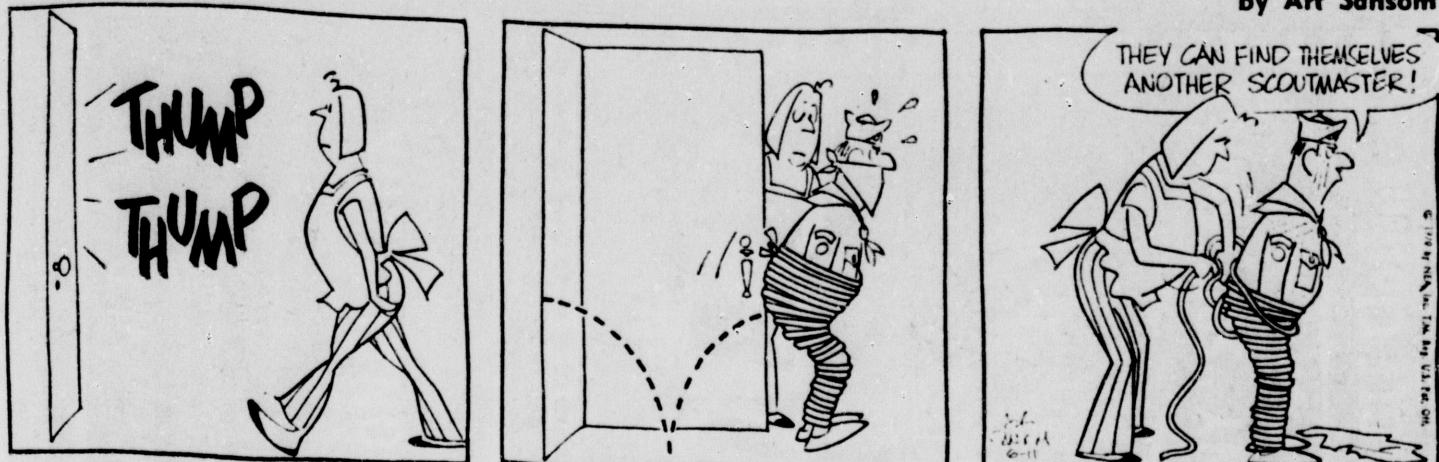

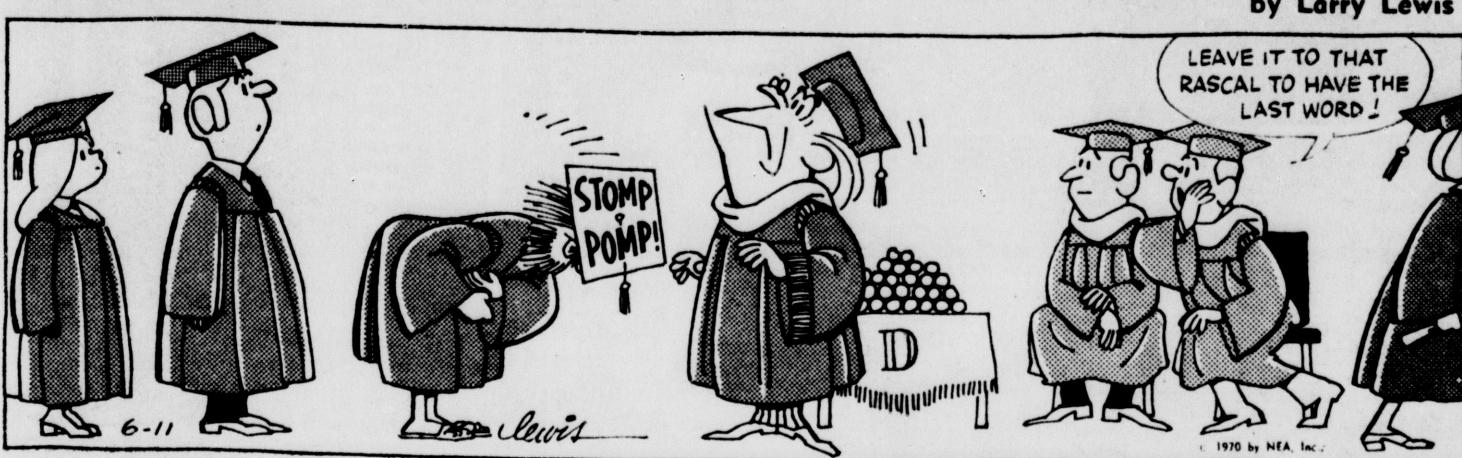

In most states, the marriage license must be applied for not later than 15 days after the blood test and is valid for only 30 days. This is because it is possible (even though unlikely) that one of the parties may have acquired syphilis in the interim.

Although this whole procedure may sound terribly unromantic, it stems from the desire of the state — all too often justified — to protect the future offspring of a marriage. Syphilis is a treacherous disease and its most tragic blows fall on blameless infants.

Q — If a woman smokes during pregnancy, will this have a harmful effect on her baby?

Yes. Heavy smoking has been shown to increase the chances of a miscarriage, stillbirth or premature delivery. Most authorities urge women to stop smoking during pregnancy, a small price to pay for giving a child a good start in life.

POLLY'S POINTERSDust Mop, Lemon Oil
Keep Brick Floor Shiny

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I have a few suggestions for the reader who is cursed with a brick-colored floor. She should start saving to replace it, keep the drapes drawn, should not try to keep it shining to a high gloss, should use a dust mop with some lemon oil on it between cleanings and remember that she notices the footprints more than other people do.—MRS. G. L.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—My two children marked on their blackboards with colored crayons. Is there any way to remove these crayon marks without ruining the blackboard?—MRS. G.

DEAR POLLY—I would like to suggest that Anna put some small pieces of cedar wood between her damp, musty books and store them in a DRY place until the odor disappears. Usually pieces of cedar can be bought at a lumber yard. She can then dust her books with one of the spray waxes to get a "leather shine."—MRS. E. D.

DEAR POLLY—If the kids are to take over when a mother plans to be away from home for a few days it is well to make out menus for them to follow. This way the rest of the children cannot complain about the meals that are being prepared. You will be able to do the marketing before leaving home.

I did this recently when I knew I was going to the hospital and my oldest girl really liked it. She did not have to worry about what to cook for each meal. I also made notes on the menus on how to change if there were leftovers that could be used. A work schedule was made for each child so each knew what was expected of him and there was no danger of having to do much more than others.—MRS. V. K.

Mrs. Sadie P. Lane

Mrs. Sadie P. Lane, 63, 408 East Boonville, died at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at Bothwell Hospital.

She was born June 3, 1907, at Sedalia, daughter of the late Henry and Dicy Johnson Wheeler. She was raised and educated in Sedalia, and had lived here all her life.

She was married to Paul (Pete) Lane, Jan. 12, 1929. He died Dec. 31, 1939.

Mrs. Lane was a member of the First Assembly of God Church.

She is survived by one son, Paul Edward Lane, 413 East Chestnut; two daughters, Mrs. Joe Bill (Edna) Fisher, 500 East Chestnut; Mrs. Thomas (Evelyn) Hampton, Route 3; one brother, Corben Wheeler, 1400 East Third; one sister, Mrs. D. L. (Bertie) Wilson, 1403 East Third; 11 grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Besides her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by two sisters and one brother.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Walter P. Arnold officiating.

Mrs. T. E. Owen and Mrs. N. Gorrell will sing "Whispering Hope," "The Old Rugged Cross," and "Going Down the Valley." Organist will be Mrs. Frank McKinney.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

A. B. Fletcher

DES MOINES, Iowa — A. B. Fletcher, 72, formerly of Sedalia, died Wednesday at the Methodist Hospital in Des Moines.

Fletcher lived in Sedalia during the World War II years, when he owned and operated the Des Moines Springfield and Southern Stages Bus Line. The office of the company was in the old Terry Hotel.

In recent years following World War II, he lived, owned and operated a large ranch in Africa. Several persons from the Sedalia area visited him there and hunted big game with him.

In recent years he operated a transportation system under contract with the Post Office Department in the Des Moines area.

He was a member of Sedalia Lodge 125, B.P.O. Elks.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Friday at Dunn's Funeral Home in Des Moines.

Burial will be in Des Moines.

Florence Miller

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Florence Lucille Miller, 69, died at her home here Thursday.

Born July 5, 1901, at Sedalia, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Sterling.

She was a member of the Trinity Lutheran Church in Sedalia and taught school here for several years.

Survivors include her husband, Earl Miller, a former Sedalia lawyer; two sons, Dr. William Miller, and Robert W. Miller, both of Tucson, Ariz.; a brother, Elmer E. Sterling, Albuquerque, N.M. and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Parish was originally charged with second degree murder, but Keeler said the charge had to be reduced since there were no witnesses. "The state had a very weak case. No one saw Parish with a gun," Keeler commented.

The deceased Fox's sister, Mrs. Pauline Bell, shouted, "Wait" when Judge Hayes passed sentence. According to Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, the woman wanted her eight year old son, Jeff, to testify. The boy allegedly was inside the Parrish house when the shooting took place. Under state law, however, an eight year old is not considered a competent witness.

July Draft Call Is Set at 15,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department today sent out a call for drafting 15,000 men into the army in July, the same number as in May and June.

The Pentagon has said it expects to draft between 150,000 and 180,000 men this year compared with 299,000 in 1969.

Trial by Jury Set to Start For Two Men

(Democrat Capital Service)

WARSAW — A trial by jury for two Kansas City men charged with second degree burglary and stealing will get underway here Friday.

Deputy Sheriff Richard Guyman said the two men, Robert Kirkpatrick, 22, and Donald Griffin, 25, had been confined in the Benton County Jail since December in lieu of $10,000 bond each.

The charges followed an incident Dec. 5 in which furniture and personal property belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Shelton Duckworth were taken from their trailer home.

Among the items taken were a diamond ring, television set, guns, and furniture. Total value of the missing items was set at $1,500, Guyman said.

Bernard Passer, Kansas City, is the defense attorney in the case, while the state's case is being prosecuted by Robert S. Drake.

Senate

the administration wants the bill without it.

In a second vote on the 21st day of the debate, the Senate unanimously approved 91 to 0 a proviso by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield making clear that nothing in the Cooper-Church amendment infringes on the President's constitutional authority as commander in chief. Several senators have expressed concern on this point.

Thursday's votes capped almost 24 hours of energetic parliamentary maneuvering which began late Wednesday when Byrd and his backers apparently realized they were short of votes.

But Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., charging Byrd was trying to confuse the issue, twice blocked him from making revisions to "sweeten" his proposal and possibly attract additional votes.

The amendment was designed to spell out presidential authority to take whatever action he deemed necessary to protect U.S. troops in Vietnam. Wednesday night Byrd tried vainly to add language requesting the President to consult with congressional leaders before acting, and Thursday morning he presented a version saying any action would be temporary and only if clearly necessary.

Accepted

As the bills cleared the House it meant the public schools would get state aid of around $234 million, or a little more if cigarette tax money is above expectations.

The schools will get $234 million this fiscal year and were promised $269 million for next year. But Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said that promise could not be fulfilled because of the defeat of the income tax bill last April 7.

The governor had recommended general revenue appropriations of $618,347,309 and an operating balance of $7.9 million.
